Dean Jackson describes a free spirit as someone who dances to the songs in his head, speaks with the rhythm of his heart, and loves from the depths of his soul. These words describe the Dave we knew and loved. He loved his family and friends and will be sorely missed.

OR ALTERNATIVE to the Dean Jackson statement:

Nietzsche argued that the greatest human beings were free spirits – those rare individuals who transcend mankind, who break free from the shackles of value systems, who no longer follow the herd, who fully embrace what it is to be human (all too human), creating their own values and making their own meaning; rising above what their culture or religion has determined to be right and wrong or beautiful. Dave was truly one such individual.

Dave's family requests that donations be made to your favorite charity or the South Texas Substance Abuse Recovery Center (website STSARS.ORG). A memorial service to celebrate Dave's life will be held on July 13, at 3:00 pm at the Funeral Care Center, 6500 IH35 North (behind Alamo City Church) at Rittiman and Eisenhower Roads.
